!! CAUTION !!

DANGEROUS IN CASE OF SNOW AND BAD WEATHER

You are walking at your own responsibility. In the mountains, storms are frequent, so listen to the weather forecast before setting off. Wear walking shoes, warm clothes and waterproofs, and take a walker's map. Never go walking alone, and always tell someone of your planned route. Respect nature, don't leave the marked paths and bring back all your litter.

pine pastures before it reaches the forest. This will then lead you to La Goutreuse d'En Haut, having twice crossed the Scie river. At La Goutreuse d'En Haut, turn left and follow the road to the Frélois carpark. "Scie" is an old French word which means sawmill. There used to be an old sawmill here which could work thanks to the river water at La Goutreuse.

If you wish, have a stop at the Romerat chapel. It's open every day in July and August.

Follow the tarmac road, direction "La Goutreuse par le Nant de la Scie", then turn left at the landscape: in the foreground is La Baume village and in the middle ground the Jotty dam. Join the path that snakes its way through the al-
